Alone on Inside

Segregation ended outside but continued inside yesterday as six Virginia high schools reoponed on a court-ordered, integrated basis. Lewis Cousins, lone Negro pupil assigned to Maury High School, Norfolk, sat in a corner of the auditorium for opening exercises as students conducted their own boycott. However, adult segregationists failed to carry out threatened picketing, and the few-score students who left classrooms as Negroes arrived were told to return today or be expelled.—(AP Photofax.)

Party Ban Defied

MADRID (AP)—Prominent Liberals and rightists have defied Generalissimo Franco's ban on opposition political movements and formed a new party.

So far there has been no retaliation from the government. Failure to take action would be interpreted as a sign of weakness. All political parties except the government (Falange) are banned in Spain.

Nearly 100 army officers, bankers, lawyers, university professors and others formed the new party, called Unio Espanola (Spanish union).

War Germs Defy Control

OTTAWA (CP)—An official history of the defence research board suggests that it would be almost impossible to apply any disarmament agreement to germ warfare.

The just-published history says "micro-organisms which could be effective biological weapons are relatively easy and cheap to produce, while no practical method of disarmament inspection would be likely to detect their manufacture or storage."

The 248-page book, entitled "DRB, a History of the Defence Research Board of Canada," says virulent bacteria could be disseminated as part of a general military offensive by means of guided missiles or aerial bombs or spread clandestinely by enemy agents within the target nation.

However, the history, written by Canadian army historian Maj. D. J. Goodspeed, says the threat of nuclear weapons is a "very much greater" menace than that of germ warfare.

"In any country which possesses well-organized medical resources, there is probably no known biological warfare agent which is capable of starting a major epidemic unless the communities were almost totally disorganized first.

"The real danger to be feared from the employment of biological warfare is rather that enemy agents might be able to infect small groups or key individuals."

The history adds:

"Although biological warfare is almost certainly not an ultimate weapon in any sense, or indeed even a decisive one by itself, there are nevertheless very real dangers to be apprehended from its use. . . .

"There must be research into the nature of the agents which are most likely to be used so that effective vaccines and anti-toxins may be developed."
